

OLD FASHIONED DINNER MUST BE REVISED NOW

"John Jones and family took dinner with Bud Williams and family Sunday," reads an item in the small-town newspaper, under the head, "Pleasant-dale Notes." To the average reader of a metropolitan paper this statement means nothing more than the fact that one country family took dinner with another, but to those who know the pleasant customs of farm life in Missouri it calls to mind a host of meanings. They know that on the table were mashed potatoes with veins of rich golden butter running through it, chicken gravy and a plate of chicken with four drumsticks, peaches, blackberries, jelly, cream, cake—a bit weighty perhaps—pie, and buns such as only Mrs. Williams could cook.

Dinner began with Williams asking his neighbor Jones to return thanks. Grace having been said, Mrs. Williams hurriedly apologized for not having more to eat. Mrs. Jones protested that it was more than she ever thought of cooking. By now Mr. Jones was helping himself to potatoes, and the dinner was under way.

"John Jones and family took dinner with Bud Williams and family," will mean something different after the Food Conservation Pledge is signed; for, of course, Mrs. Williams and Mrs. Jones will pledge themselves, both being true Missourians. When Bud Williams and family are pressed at the close of "meeting" on next preaching Sunday to return the Joneses' visit a surprise will be ready for them.

There will be plenty of potatoes, but they will not be so well buttered as of old; for the pledge card says butter is one of the foods to be conserved. Only the children will be allowed cream; for Uncle Sam wants to send the cream across in the form of condensed cream and cheese. The cake will not have so much shortening, if it is present at all; fats must be sent to our allies. Beside the wheat bread will be a heaping plate of corn bread; France and England need flour. And, even if there is as much sugar in the bowl as ever, the children will have been trained not to take the usual helping.

The Federal Food Administration asks Americans to eat less of some foods and more of others, lest they later have to submit to restrictions such as are compulsory in Great Britain. There all restaurants and hotels are rationed in proportion to the number of customers fed. No guest may eat more than five ounces of meat at one meal and one day of the week meatless day. Potatoes may be served on two days of the week—Friday and meatless day. Tea shops and bakeries are allotted their breadstuffs. They dare not make fancy pastries, muffins or other light articles of pastry. Cakes, buns and scones which are permitted must conform to certain requirements as to amounts of flour and sugar used.

Cakes may not contain more than 15 per cent of sugar, whereas the American housewife's customary formula—two cups of sugar, three of flour, one of shortening, one of milk and one half of eggs—has 27 per cent sugar. The amount of wheat flour in cakes is limited to 30 per cent and in buns to fifty. Rye and barley flour have taken the place of wheat flour in bread to a large extent.

Families must not buy food in excess of their immediate needs. If the seller suspects hoarding he may refuse to sell to the person under suspicion. Furthermore, the food controller has the right to inspect the premises of any man for stored goods.

The saving and substitutions that the food pledge asks us to make are mild in comparison with the British restrictions. One side of the pledge card tells why we must conserve, the other how. Our army must be fed with American foodstuffs. We can increase exports best by eating less of wheat, dairy products, beef and pork, and sugar—foods that take the minimum of shipping space and have the maximum of nutrition. We are advised to substitute for these foods corn, potatoes, beans and fish.

Needless to say, Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Williams will do their bit.

URGES WOMEN TO HELP Y. M. C. A.

Miss Katherine King Says Each Should Contribute $5 to War Work.

The necessity of raising money for the Y. M. C. A. work in the trenches was the subject of the talk made by Miss Katherine King, president of the M. women of the University, at the mass meeting held in the University Auditorium at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon. "Our boys are going to face temptations," she said, and we want them to come back to us morally clean. This University must furnish $10,000 of the amount to be raised for this cause and that will mean that each girl will have to give $5."

Mrs. Turner McBaine also spoke on the lax moral conditions which our men will be under in France, and the good that the Y. M. C. A. is doing at the front.

The discipline of the school was discussed and it was decided to have a discipline committee appointed by the president of the S. G. A., Miss Mary McDaniel. This committee will make further rules on the conduct of University women and will enforce all of the rules.

TO HAVE JUNIOR RED CROSS

Columbia Children Will Sacrifice Sweets and Work for Soldiers.

Junior Red Cross work, which will arouse the patriotism and increase the efficiency of American children will be done in the Columbia schools under the supervision of Miss Ella V. Dobbs, if plans being made in St. Louis are carried out.

To become a member of the Junior Auxiliary each school must contribute a sum equivalent to 25 cents a pupil. The children will be asked to sacrifice candy and chewing gum and will be allowed to make bandages, scrap books for wounded soldiers, and boxes for shipping supplies to the soldiers.

SCHOOL SURVEY STARTED

A. G. Capps Is in Charge of Work Suggested by Gov. Gardner.

Work is under way on the co-operative investigation and study of the rural schools of the state, the first survey of its kind ever undertaken here. A. G. Capps of Columbia, secretary in charge of the work, who is a graduate of the School of Education of the University, has already sent out questionnaires to the county superintendents and rural school teachers and has a long list of volunteers for personal inspection work which will come later.

Mr. Capps' plan is to investigate one in about ten rural schools in each county, some of the best and some of the worst, dealing particularly with the 1-room schools. The idea of the survey originated with Governor Gardner, who wishes to know whether our public school system really ranks low. The survey will cover equipment, teachers' training, financial support, methods of instruction and the like. The University, the normals and other educational institutions and organizations of the state are co-operating in this work.

Local Men to Ozark Trail Meeting.

Dean E. J. McCaustland, E. W. Stephens, Judge J. A. Stewart, Dr. J. B. Cole and A. J. Estes were appointed last week by Mayor J. E. Boggs to represent Columbia at the meeting of the Ozarks Trails Association to be held at Chanute, Kan., November 14. The association wishes to extend the Ozark Trail from Springfield through Jefferson City, Fulton and Mexico to Hannibal.

C. C. Club to Give Charity Concert.

The Christian College Club will give a sacred concert this afternoon to raise money for the Columbia Charity Organization Society. The members have agreed to abolish all useless Christmas giving and will devote the money that would have been spent in this way to a fund for Armenian children. At a meeting of the club Wednesday a program of music and reading was given.

RELICS WILL REVIVE OLD MISSOURI DAYS

Pioneer Times Will Be Symbolized in Collection to Be Seen Here.

EXHIBIT ON JAN. 8

Historical Society Will Show

Articles Used 100 Years Ago in Pioneer Life.

Further plans for the annual meeting of the Missouri State Historical Society January 8, include an extensive antiquarian and pioneer relic exhibit. The day will be observed in a manner fitting its historical significance.

When Missouri first petitioned for statehood there were but seven counties in the territory. These were the original five Spanish districts of St. Charles, St. Louis, St. Genevieve, Cape Girardeau and New Madrid, which became counties in 1812; a new county, Washington was organized in 1815, and Howard in 1816. It is the plan of the Missouri Centennial Committee of One Thousand to have on exhibition in the State Historical Society rooms in the General Library for the week beginning January 8, a collection of pioneer relics of 100 years ago on loan from these seven counties. Besides this exhibit, an extensive pioneer relic display from Columbia and Boone County is being planned. This display will include muskets used by the pioneers of Boone County in fighting the Indians, looms, spinning-wheels and old-time clothing and furniture. An old cotton-gin and a flax hackle that was used to beat the fiber from the flax, will be shown as implements of early industries.

Powder-horns, shot-pouches, coonskin caps and other pioneer articles will be displayed. There will also be a large collection of Indian relics. A copy of the first country newspaper in Missouri will be on display, the Missouri Intelligencer and Boone's Lick Advertiser, published in Old Franklin in Howard County. There will also be a copy of the Missouri Gazette of 1809, now the St. Louis Republic.

Western Union Operator to Nevada. Leonard Hopper, a Columbian, began work yesterday as a telegraph operator at the Western Union office in Nevada, Mo. Ten years ago, then a small boy, he went to work in the telegraph office here as a messenger. He learned the code by studying at odd times and was given a key. This week another promotion came when he was transferred to the Nevada office.

TO SAVE OUR YOUNG MEN.

The soldiers in the field are menaced by two perils—the enemy in front of the trenches and the enemy behind the trenches.

The one threatens his life with deadly missiles and the other his manhood, his health, his moral strength and his efficiency with degrading vices.

In his eloquent appeal for the Y. M. C. A. war fund, George Sherwood Eddy vividly depicts both of these menaces.

He describes with moving pathos the manifold dangers and bitter hardships that beset the men in the trenches—the shells, the bullets, the bombs, the bayonets, the poisonous gases; the cold, the wet, the mud, the filth, the vermin, the arduous labor.

Besides the work of the Government in training, equipping, feeding and clothing the soldiers, there are two vital tasks which necessarily depend in the main upon volunteer contributions and effort. These are:

1. Caring for the wounded, which is the special function of the Red Cross.

2. Caring for the fighting men, which in the main is the special task of the Y. M. C. A.

The Red Cross campaign for funds was crowned with success.

The call now comes for funds to sustain the no less important and valuable work of the Y. M. C. A. in caring for the men in the trenches and the training camps.

In its war work the Y. M. C. A. is a religious organization only in the broadest sense of the word. Its service is social and moral, dissociated from any and all sectarianism. All churches and religious bodies may work through it, but everyone, regardless of race, creed and sect, is admitted to its privileges.

What this organization has done for the men in the armies and in the prison camps is a stirring record of heroic and efficient work for the preservation of health and morals among the millions exposed to the horrors and hardships of war, and the debasing and destructive influences and effects of vice.

Every soldier who has experienced the beneficent influences of the Y. M. C. A. work and who has found in its huts the comfort, the solace and the wholesome recreation which would otherwise be denied him, is an eloquent witness to the value of the organization's work.

The organization gives first comfort, aid and refreshment to the walking wounded.

It gives comfort, refreshment and cheer to the men going into the trenches.

It gives shelter, reading and writing facilities, social enjoyment, recreation, opportunities for physical cleanliness and spiritual comfort to the mud-stained, blood-stained, worn and weary men coming from the trenches, who, without it, would lack all these things.

One of the greatest problems of this war is to save the millions of young men in the trenches and the camps from the degradations and diseases of vice. The best remedy so far found combines innocent diversion with wholesome social influences and pleasant surroundings during their hours of relaxation. The effective method is to substitute good for evil.

Imagine a million young men thrown into the heavy labors, dangers and hardships of war, thousands of miles from home, deprived of home, social and religious influences and subject to the reckless tendencies and brutalizing surroundings. What can they do with their leisure hours unless some substitute for home and community life is offered them? How shall normal moral standards and decent habits be maintained without opportunity for cleanliness, comfort, society, mental and moral stimulus?

But remember this last thought: All must help. The boys in the war zone must be looked after in the War Home—the Y. M. C. A.—your boy and mine. Let's be liberal with our means. This is no time to try and save money. Make all you can, but give it to worthy causes. We must all learn to sacrifice and give during the war, because we must win the war through the boys at the front.

The Y. M. C. A. keeps the home fire burning and maintains the moral and social standards. It is estimated that 24,000,000 men, of whom 6,000,000 are prisoners, must be provided for. Our own soldiers are first in order, but we must help to succor and comfort and stimulate the French, the Russians, the Rumanians, the Serbians, the Italians.

Not less than $35,000,000 is needed for this work. Twice that sum would not be too much. Missouri is asked for $1,000,000. It is a bagatelle in view of the work to be done and the beneficent results to be gained. Boone County is expected to and will raise $12,500 to $15,000, and she will gladly contribute this sum to this wonderful work. If 100 men would give $100 each—would give a $100 Liberty Bond—we would have $10,000. One organization in Columbia is going to give $1,200—God bless the women, for without them we could do nothing in this or any other country. They are loyally rallying to this and every other worthy cause. The big drive is to be made in Boone County and all over the nation from the morning of the 11th to the 19th. The executive committee, which is given below, named a chairman and campaign manager for each township in Boone County and said chairman and campaign manager will choose committees in each school district in the county. At 2 o'clock each day, beginning on Monday, November 12, the campaign manager in each township will report to the campaign manager of the county the amount of money subscribed, and he in turn will notify the campaign manager for each district and this will be passed up to the campaign manager in each state and then on to Washington for the nation. Each day in the township, county, state and nation all will know the progress of the work. Every school child in Boone County will be asked to contribute from one cent ap.

Chairman Gray and Campaign Manager McPheeters wired Louis Richter of Co. 8, 164th D. B., Camp Funston, Kansas, to know what he thought of the work in the Y. M. C. A. Camp there and today he writes as follows:

"I was one of the fellows who never paid any attention to this organization and its work, but I am ready to say that their work out here is wonderful. They furnish us with reading rooms and a big, cheerful fireplace; an auditorium with a piano; a talking machine and lots of good records, all the stationery you can use and a hundred other advantages and comforts, and all of this absolutely free. The religious work cannot possibly offend anyone."

"Another feature was announced, that foreign languages, especially French, will be taught to the boys who want to take advantage of this. I am very anxious that the Y. M. C. A. should receive all the encouragement possible, as it has proven a blessing to the fellows who are lonesome out here."

The organization in each township will endeavor to arrange for union services in each community all over the county for Sunday, November 11, 1917, at 11 o'clock a. m., and speakers worth hearing will present this matter in a pleasing and convincing way.
